Excelia Business School continues to progress, heading towards the Top 50 in the Financial Times European Business Schools Ranking 2023

The Financial Times has today published its European Business Schools Ranking 2023. This ranking is a consolidation of the results obtained by European schools in each of the world rankings compiled by the Financial Times for 2023: MBA, EMBA, Masters in Management, Executive Education (Open programmes and Custom programmes). Excelia Business School has been ranked 54th Best European School.

Excelia Business School goes from strength to strength (+ 7 places)

By rising 7 places in the Financial Times 2023 ranking, Excelia Business School has confirmed its place among the elite of business schools in Europe and across the globe

- Climbing to 54th place in the Financial Times 2023 ranking, the school is en route to becoming one of Europe's Top 50 business schools
- The school is 11th among the French major business schools featured in the ranking offering undergraduate, postgraduate, and continuing education programmes
- This result takes account of Excelia Business School's performance in two FT rankings
 - 33rd in the world in the best Masters in Management (+ 33 places in 3 years)
 - 50th in the world in Executive Education Custom programmes (+ 8 places, just a year after its first entry in 2022)

A doubly impressive performance by Excelia Business School

Excelia Business School being ranked 54th is a major achievement for two reasons:

- The school accomplished this even though only two out of five possible rankings were taken into account
- This year's ranking features a smaller group of eligible business schools, with only 90 European business schools included, compared with 95 in previous years
